

Privacy Policy

Print Media Group will not share your information with anyone without your consent. We are committed to the protection of your rights to privacy in accordance with the Information Privacy Act 2000.

We will collect personally identifiable information from online subscriber forms in order to provide the service. Our technology partners may have access to your data in order to provide service to you.

You can access and browse our website anonymously, without disclosing personal information. However, when you visit our website, information is collected about you using a cookie. Cookies are pieces of information that a website can transfer to a computer for tracking your website visiting patterns and preferences.

Most internet browsers are configured to accept cookies, but can be set to refuse cookies or warn when cookies are being used.

The following non-personal information is automatically recorded by our website server for statistical and system administration purposes:

- your server address
- domain name of the account used to access the internet
- date and time of your visit
- pages accessed and downloaded
- address of the last site visited, if linked to our website from another website
- operating system used
- browser used

This data is aggregated and used to establish information about the number and duration of visits to our website, and the popularity of different areas of our website. We do not make any attempt to identify you or your browsing activities. However, in the unlikely event of an investigation, a law enforcement agency may exercise a warrant to inspect our server's logs.

Any information provided to Print Media Group through the use of on-line forms on our website will only be used for the purposes it was collected. It may also be used for our own planning and research purposes to improve our services to you.

Your information is stored on a secure database and remains completely confidential. We will protect the quality and integrity of your personal information, utilise appropriate technologies and security methods to store the information collected, and take all necessary steps to prevent unauthorised access, disclosure or accidental destruction or loss of information.

We will ask you when we need you to provide further personal information for any reason. Generally, we will only collect further personal information that is related to the services that you ask us to provide to you.

Future Changes

Print Media Group may, from time to time, update this Privacy statement to reflect technological changes, policy and client feedback.
